Top Toys 2018

MILFORD — The biggest toy sellers (Target, Walmart, JCPenney and Amazon) have announced their picks for the hottest toys of the year. These are the toys that will top kids' wish lists for the 2018 holiday season. They're also the toys that will sell out quickly. So have a look at our preview for the Top 10 toys for this year (based on how often the toys appear on these four retailers' lists) and make your shopping plans.

1. WowWee Fingerlings HUGS

Fingerlings, the animatronic, interactive baby monkeys were popular last year, too. This year, the must-have model will be the larger HUGS version, according to Walmart's, Target's and Amazon's toy lists.

This monkey has long arms that will embrace you in a hug. As you interact with the monkey, it will react with noises and movements. There are seemingly infinite commands that produce reactions, such as giggles and kisses.

2. L.O.L. Surprise! Bigger Surprise!

L.O.L. Surprise toys come in many forms, from boxes to balls, and contain various collectible toys. The latest version, which is included on Target's, JCPenney's and Amazon's toy lists, will contain exclusive dolls and accessories, from 60+ possibilities.

3. Hatchimals

For yet another year, Hatchimals (the eggs that hatch animatronic surprise pets) have made it onto the toy lists. In early October, Hatchimals announced the newest products, HatchiBabies. So, expect those to fly off shelves this year.

4. furReal critters (Munchin' Rex, Rock-A-Too)

Too and more)

These animatronic pets interact with you. Feed them "treats," give them bottles and just watch them move around and make noises in response to various stimuli. Amazon, JCPenney and Target include various furReal critters on their toy lists.

5. Sesame Street Playskool Friends Let's Dance Elmo

Elmo is no stranger to Top Toys lists. This year's most in-demand Elmo toy (according to both Target and Amazon) will be a singing and dancing version. Made for toddlers, Elmo has three musical recordings about colors and animals, which he grooves to along with color-changing lights.

6. Imaginext Jurassic World Jurassic Rex

The Imaginext Jurassic World T-Rex set, which is included in Walmart's and Target's toy lists, is practically the size of your toddler. Your kid can use the controls on this dinosaur to chomp on the accessories it comes with and engage its light-up eyes. It also comes with a Power Pad that launches a vehicle into action.

Jurassic Park toys are generally a hot commodity this year, with various branded dino toys and LEGO sets on retailers' lists this year.

7. Harry Potter Hogwarts Great Hall LEGO Building Kit

Harry Potter merchandise is still going strong, and this 878-piece set is on Amazon's and JCPenney's lists. Build a replica of Hogwarts' Great Hall, complete with house banners and a movable staircase. The set includes 10 mini figurines of Harry Potter characters.

A bit complicated, this toy is recommended for young witches and wizards between 9 and 14.

8. Barbie DreamHouse

If you're feeling nostalgic and want to buy your child something you also remember playing with, the 3-foot-tall, 4-foot-wide Barbie DreamHouse is practically a mansion and is included in both Walmart's and Target's toy lists. It incorporates lights and sounds (tea kettles, oven timers) for an interactive play experience, as well as an elevator.

9. PJMasks Play Set

Recreate the adventures of your child's favorite nocturnal heroes. Amazon's, JCPenney's and Walmart's toy lists include play sets from PJMasks, including the Headquarters set and Romeo's Lab. Supplement your kid's gift haul with additional figures and vehicles (sold separately).

10. Really Rad Robots Mibro R/C Robot

Walmart's and Target's lists both include this toy, which is remote-controlled. Your child can use the robot's tray to transport objects and even set him to listening mode to spy with a built-in microphone.

#GivingTuesday Is Over, But Help Is Still Needed

MILFORD — Here's the sad truth. In our first quarter, Safe Haven Advocates helped an average of 53 NEW victims every month.

These are YOUR neighbors, YOUR friends, YOUR family.

What can your donation buy for victims and their children?

Gas to flee a dangerous home.

Food, when they otherwise would have gone to bed hungry.

Toys, after the kids had to leave all of their favorites ones behind.

A warm winter jacket, after they've ran from their home with just the clothes on their backs.

A stay in a hotel, safe from the harm and danger of their violent partner.

Freedom, hope, faith, courage, strength, independence.

Your donation can do so much good for someone who's world is otherwise filled with bad.

Visit Safe Haven's wish list. Be a light in someone else's darkness.
